INTRODUCTION

The Mount Street Club was founded in 1934 to provide assistance to unemployed workers in Dublin. It was a charitable organisation founded by Philip Townsend Somerville-Large and Major James Hardress de Warrenne Waller who believed that rather than handing out cash payments such as the dole there were more constructive methods of relieving the social problems caused by unemployment. This group were inspired by the idea that men should be employed by work in order to provide for their own livelihood as well as that of their family. The Club was based at 81/82 Mount Street, Dublin 2 and had two Trustees, Philip T. Somerville-Large and Hugh Alexander Delap. It was managed by a Board of Governors who held regular meetings in order to monitor and direct the workings of the Club. In 1939, it purchased a farm, 'Larkfield' in Clondalkin, Co. Dublin which gave the men employment and provided food and other materials for use in production of other goods. The Club did not pay money to the men who worked in the Club or on the farm but had their own currency in operation, the tally. This was a system whereby the men worked on a certain activity for a certain amount of time in order to earn a certain number of tallies which could then be exchanged within the Club for food or other goods. After World War II, an increase in unemployment benefit and an increase in emigration led to falling membership and during this time the tally system ended.

The farm was bought by compulsory purchase order in the early 1970s by Dublin Corporation for a housing scheme. The profit from the sale was invested with the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland. The lease ended in the Mount Street Club in 1974 and the Club moved premises to 62/63 Fenian Street. The men who had lived at the Mount Street Club Farm were housed in hostels, paid for by the Club. From this time onwards, the men applied to join the Club and employers contacted the management for workers. In this way, men were assigned to various jobs and paid in cash by the employers. In 1984, the arrangement of all casual work for men ended. The building at Fenian Street was no longer being used to house the Club and in 1979, the ground floor was given rent free to the Mount Street Club Day Activity Centre for the disabled, which was run by the Eastern Health Board.

Feasibility studies were commissioned in order to pursue new avenues of activity for the Club. Some of the Governors became involved in the Grand Canal Basin Working Group (later Grand Canal Docks Trust) in the late eighties and as a result became involved in a series of community schemes. In 1987, the Dublin Nautical Trust (later the Irish Nautical Trust) was formed. It aimed to provide unemployed people with the opportunity of furthering their practical and social skills through ship building and other maintenance projects based at Grand Canal Dock. Although the Dublin Nautical Trust was established as a separate identity, it continued to rely heavily on funding from the Mount Street Club. From 1991, the Club raised income through the rental of serviced offices and car parking spaces at Fenian Street. A partnership with Focus Ireland, to transform the premises at Fenian Street into a hostel along the lines of a Foyer project, was investigated in the late 1990s and later abandoned in 2001.

It was decided that the Mount Street Club was no longer true to its original five principles laid down during its foundation in 1934 as a club for unemployed workers. Thus, it was dissolved in 2006 and its assets redistributed at the discretion of the Trustees.

Custody of the records

These records were held in the Mount Street Club premises at Mount Street and when the Club transferred to Fenian Street premises the records were also transferred. They also contain some records from the Day Activity Centre, Irish Nautical Trust and Grand Canal Docks Trust. In February 2006, this archive was created at the request of the Trustees and the Board of Governors of the Mount Street Club, as the charity was about to be dissolved.

Arrangement of the records

The records are contained in 23 standard archival boxes, 3 oversize boxes. In addition there are 5 rolls of maps which have not yet been boxed.

These records have been arranged firstly according to subject type and secondly according to document type.

Information contained in these records

This collection is an important record of the efforts of a charitable organisation to alleviate the problem of unemployment in Dublin over eight decades, from 1930s-2000s, and as such is an invaluable source to social historians of this time period. It provides rich historical information about the needs of the working-class especially in the 1930s, 1940s when there were less sources of State-sponsored aid and its importance lies in the fact that it documents a group of people, namely the unemployed, who are all too often ignored from the official record. It gives an account of a pioneering movement established to provide men with a means of working for their earnings and shows how this effort was mirrored in other clubs in Limerick and Waterford. Also, it documents the changes in economic and social conditions of the less fortunate in the second half of the 20th century, especially in the Grand Canal Basin area of Dublin. Furthermore, it affords valuable insight into the schemes initiated by some local inner city groups who aimed at providing skills and further education to the unemployed.

It provides statistical information on the numbers of men who were members of the Club over several decades and provides detailed information on the type of work carried out on the farm and in casual jobs.

The collection presents a comprehensive overview of the Club activities and this is demonstrated in the fact that it contains, minutes, correspondence, financial and legal records, reports, plans, photographs and publicity material.

Conclusion

In conclusion, the Mount Street Club collection is one of rich historical value, particularly in the context of Irish social history. It is appropriate to record appreciation of the Mount Street Club for preserving their records for future generations. These records were processed, arranged and a descriptive list was prepared in 2011 at Dublin City Archives.

Correspondence re gift of farm by Somerville-Large brothers to the Club

Crampton to J. J. Newcome (10/05/41) enclosing handwritten draft letter by Newcome relating to the understood loan of capital from the Somerville-Large brothers to the Club to facilitate purchase of the farm. He acknowledges receipt of the deed of mortgage for the farm and extends the opinion of the Governors that this is not necessary as it is their intention to fully repay the loaned capital. Draft letter includes additional handwritten paragraph from P. T. Somerville-Large. The correspondence is then formalised with two copies of Newcome's draft letter typed and also two versions of P. T. Somerville-Large's additions typed up in letter form. A further letter and copy version clearly states the position of the Somerville-Large brothers who agree to execute a mortgage deed but state that they will never ask for money from the Club as long as it is in existence and as long as it "is being conducted according to the wishes of its founders". Mohan to Newcome (21/10/41) asking for mortgage documents to be completed.

MOUNT STREET CLUB: PIEL GOLF CUP: PHOTOGRAPHS

Item Code: Ar/add/81/470/04

Date: 23 August 1996

Description: From album titled Dr. Piel Cup, 23 August 1996. In the centre of the photograph is the Mount Street Club display at golf clubhouse with posters showcasing the work of Mount Street Club. The Dr. Piel Cup is on a stand to the right of the display. There are windows looking out onto the green in the background. To the left and right and also in front of the display there is furniture visible; the room is most likely a reception room or part of the dining area in the clubhouse.

Photograph of unidentified woman at outdoor event

Date: [1940s]

Description: Black and white portrait photograph of woman standing in a field where there is some open air activity going on, a large marquee is visible in the left background. Also visible are people sitting at benches and on stools and a statue of a white horse. Woman is wearing a black jacket and long skirt and a white apron which is decorated with pictures of vegetables. She is also wearing a white chef like hat, on which is drawn some sort of plant or fruit, there appears to be grapes, perhaps artificial, hanging from the hat. The woman also wears a badge on her right lapel which has two horses and a ribbon. [Perhaps taken at RDS Horse Show].
