INTRODUCTION

The Dublin Mansion House Fund was founded in January 1880 for the relief of distress in Ireland, which had been caused by the successive failures of the harvests of 1877-79. By 1880 the want of food throughout the countryside caused widespread hunger, which was known as "The Little Famine" since it was not as severe as the shortages of the 1840s. The Mansion House Fund was operated by a voluntary committee, under the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Edmund Dwyer Gray. Funds were raised in Europe and North America and from as far away as India and Australia. The money was then distributed to local committees in the distressed districts, with the proviso that it should be spent on the purchase of Indian meal, which was then to be distributed to those in need. The harvest of autumn 1880 was comparatively good and as a result, the Mansion House Fund was wound up in December of that year, transferring its functions to trustees and transferring its records to the custody of Dublin City Council.

Custody of the records

At a meeting of Dublin City Council on 6 December 1880, a letter was read from J.H. Wright, assistant secretary to the Mansion House Fund. He wrote: "I am directed to ask permission to place the records of the Mansion House Committee permanently in the press in the wainscoting in the Hall of the Mansion House, with a suitable tablet so as to preserve these documents as an important public record, the key to be kept by the Town Clerk." The City Council passed a resolution giving effect to this request and in this way the records of the Mansion House Fund passed into the custody of the City Council. As requested, the records were placed in the entrance hall of the Mansion House, in a press which was to be their home for nearly 100 years. A brass plaque was put up to mark the location, and this is still in the entrance hall.

In 1972, while renovations were in progress at the Mansion House, the Dublin City & County Librarian gave instructions that some records of the fund were to be removed to library headquarters at Pearse Street for safe-keeping. After Dublin City Council established its archives service in 1980, these were transferred to City Hall, where they were arranged and listed by the archivist. In July 1980, the City & County Librarian directed the transfer to City Hall of the remaining records stored in the press at the Mansion House. These included the remaining records of the Mansion House Fund, which were accessioned as Ch/1 and also the records of several other charitable committees, established by various Lord Mayors of Dublin, as follows:

Ch/2: Canadian Fund for Relief of Distress in Ireland, 1880

Ch/3: South City Markets Fire Brigade Fund, 1892

Ch/4: Achill Improvement Fund, 1894

Ch/5: Barry Sullivan Memorial Fund

The transferred material also included a small quantity of official papers relating to three former Lord Mayors: Edmund Dwyer Gray, 1880; Valentine B. Dillon, 1894-5; and R.J. McCoy, 1896.

Arrangement of the records

The activities of the Mansion House Committee have been very well described in their Proceedings published in 1881 and of course are documented by the records described in this descriptive list. The records have been arranged according to the structure of the committee, which is summarized in the following paragraphs.

The Mansion House Fund was operated by a general committee which co-ordinated all the business of running the fund and by a series of sub-committees, where most of the actual work of raising finance and distributing relief was carried out. The Lord Mayor, Edmund Dwyer Gray, was Chairman and he was assisted by seven honorary treasurers and seven honorary secretaries. All these elected officials were automatically members of each sub-committee. There was a small staff of salaried clerks underpinning the entire organization: this staff was headed by the Assistant Secretary, J.H. Wright, who was also a salaried official.

The records have been grouped according to their origin in the activities of the General Committee or of the numerous sub-committees. No records have been found relating to the activities of the Australian Sub-Committee, which is listed in Proceedings. In addition, records have been discovered relating to a Medical Commission, which is not mentioned in Proceedings, but which is given as a separate group of records in this descriptive list.

The records of activities of the salaried clerks have been grouped together under the heading Administration. Similarly, the activities of the Trustees who were entrusted with winding up the affairs of the fund have been separately grouped under the heading Trustees.

Numbering of the records

The prefix Ch/1 (followed by the document number) has been adopted for the Mansion House Fund records. This prefix stands for Charitable Committee No. 1 and indicates that this is the first collection from a charitable committee to be accessioned to the Dublin City Archives.

The documents in the collection have been numbered in straight successive sequence, Ch1/1 to Ch 1/196. In two instances, numbering systems adopted by the Mansion House Fund have been retained as sub-numbers. In the first instance, the Fund issued each local committee with a unique reference number, which was quoted on all its correspondence and transactions. In this descriptive list, an index to local committees arranged by county and again alphabetically by townland within each county, has been supplied as Appendix I. This index should be consulted when requested documents listed under Ch 1/39 (weekly statistical returns from local committees) and Ch 1/52 (correspondence received from local committees). The researcher who, for example, wishes to see correspondence received from the local committee at Aughrim Co. Galway, should consult Appendix I under Co. Galway and should then request the file for Aughrim under the number Ch 1/52/293.

The second instance relates to documents listed under the number Ch 1/10, which refers to letters received by the General Committee. Each letter was given a reference number in the order of its reception, commencing with G/1 and continuing through to G/956. In this descriptive list, these letters and their reference numbers have been entered into an alphabetical index to persons and places, which forms Appendix II. The researcher who, for example, wishes to see letters received by the Mansion House Fund from Arnott & Co., Dublin, should consult Appendix II and then request letters under the numbers Ch 1/10/G/81; Ch 1/10/G/124 and Ch 1/10/G/454.

Information contained in these records

In addition to documenting the activities of the Dublin Mansion House Relief Fund for 1880, the records listed here throw light on many other topics. The progress of the Little Famine throughout the country, demographic patterns and social structure are recorded in the correspondence and weekly statistical returns from local committees. These records are an invaluable resource for local historians, especially in the worst-affected areas, along the western seaboard. Some districts are documented in depth, such as Cummer, Co. Galway (Ch 1/145) and the Boffin and Shark Islands (Ch 1/118). The statistical returns also give information on relief given by other funds, such as those operated by the New York Herald, the Land League and the Duchess of Marlborough, wife of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. Further information about the Duchess of Marlborough's fund can be obtained from correspondence received from her fund (Ch 1/16) and from records of the Western Isles Sub-Committee, with which her fund co-operated (Ch 1/113-8).

The collection also contains several series of letters from individuals seeking assistance either for themselves or for others (Ch 1/12 to Ch 1/16 inclusive). These letters also offer information on literacy, unemployment, social mobility and the role of women.

These are only a few of the activities and conditions pertaining in 1880 which are documented in this collection. An examination of the descriptive list and of the appendices should elicit several others.

Conclusion

In conclusion, it is appropriate to record appreciation of the Mansion House Fund and Dublin City Council for their foresight in arranging for the preservation of these records for future generations. This descriptive list was prepared in 1980 to mark the centenary of the Little Famine and it was revised and entered on computer in 1994 in preparation for the 150th anniversary of the Great Famine in 1995. The Mansion House Fund records are now housed at Dublin City Library and Archive, 138-144 Pearse Street, Dublin 2.
