

1913 Bloody Sunday commemoration re-enactment

This event is being organized by the 1913 Lockout Centenary committee, along with the Dublin Council of Trade Unions and the North Inner City Folklore Project. Those wishing to join the re-enactment are encouraged to assemble at 11am on Saturday August 31 and follow the detailed guidelines given below for participants.

11am – Assembly at various locations as follows:

Dockers (men): Custom House

If coming as a docker, please wear dark trousers (not jeans or combats) with a belt or braces, collarless shirt with a muffler or handkerchief around the neck, dark waistcoat or jacket, hat or cap with dark shoes (no trainers).

Jacobs Workers (women): Rear of Central Bank

If coming as a Jacobs workers, please wear a dark ankle-length dress or skirt, a light coloured blouse and dark boots or flat shoes (no trainers). If possible please wear a dark coloured or straw hat.

Poor of Dublin (men, women and children): Gloucester Diamond

Men, women or children coming as the 'poor of Dublin' should wear old, torn or shabby clothes (see notes for men and women above) and very old shoes (no trainers)

The audience may wear any of the above, or any Edwardian costume (such as those worn on Bloomsday)

11.45 – Leave assembly points and proceed to O'Connell Street, gather at Clery's and across the road.

12 noon – Assemble for State Commemoration

12.30pm – State Commemoration starts

1.30pm – Wreath laying ceremony at Larkin statue

1.45pm – Transition to Community Re-Enactment

2pm – Re-enactment of Bloody Sunday

2.30pm – Re-enactment participants move to Foley Street

3pm – Unveiling of plaque for those who died

3.30pm – Soup kitchen and fleadh in Foley Street.

These Times may be subject to change please check

<http://1913lockout.ie/> for details