Event Organiser Journey

Contact us as soon as you start planning your event, this should be done 12 weeks out from the event date.

On submission of the draft event plan (10 weeks in advance), your plan will be circulated to city stakeholders and statutory agencies for review.

The Event Management Team and Safety Team will be required to attend a stakeholder meeting(s) to review the proposed plans in advance of the proposed date of the event.

Unless advised otherwise, you should then update your draft event plan with the amendments required by city stakeholders and resubmit the final Event Plan no later than 3 weeks before the event date.

The final event plan will be circulated to city stakeholders also.

Please note that if the Event Organisers make significant changes to the draft plan, the event management process will restart again, i.e. the 10-week consultation process will start again. All documents will have to be resubmitted for review.

If your event requires additional licences for temporary structures, funfair equipment or sale and supply of food then a pre-event inspection will generally be required on site.

Post Event, the event management team and safety team will be required to attend a debrief meeting within 2-5 weeks after your event.

Charges may incur for services rendered including but not limited to: location fees, road closure fees and parking space fees.

Dublin City Council branding and/or acknowledgement may be requested at the proposed event.
